My Fellow New Yorkers,

As a newly elected Board member there is no duty that is more urgent than that of returning thanks.

I am deeply moved by the expression of confidence and support that I have received from you, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. I am immensely grateful to the family, friends, and supporters who so generously contributed their time and effort to my campaign during this election. The attendance from New York was beyond impressive, and those that were in the room on the day of the election can attest that the presence you provided was loud and clear.

To the many individuals who came forward to assist with my campaign, I say a big thank you! We couldn't have succeeded without you. Many of you spent countless hours contributing to the campaign and I sincerely thank each an every one of you.

I would be remiss if I didn't specifically thank three individuals for their efforts. Jeff Wilkinson, Ed Cusato and Travis Dawley each rose above the call, and contributed and dedicated their time and efforts far more than I can describe. I want to thank each of them personally, and ask that if you have the opportunity to see them, please make sure that their efforts are appreciated.

Being an effective member of the board of directors involves listening to the members, translating their concerns into workable proposals, and building consensus to implement them. In the many months leading up to the election, I spoke to many at their doorsteps and heard clearly their ideas, issues and concerns., and I sincerely appreciate your willingness to discuss what really matters to you. For that, I thank you once again.

I hope I shall be able to fulfill the aspirations and furthermore, exceed the expectations of my supporters for which I would require their continued support leading into the next election year.

Thank you again for your support and confidence, it means more to me than you know.

Sincerely,

Steven L. McDaniel
